

COMMANDER HONORED . . . Receiving a trophy and congratulations of Maj. J. W. T. Schisler, left, is Lt. Bert Pincney, commander of Civil Air Patrol Squadron 43.

Civil Air Patrol Commander Honored

Named the "outstanding man of the year" by the California Wing of the Civil Air Patrol here Monday evening was Lt. Bert Pincney, commanding officer of the 43rd Squadron (South Bay) of CAP.

The award was presented by Maj. J. W. T. Schisler, commanding officer of the 7th Group. Maj. Paul Greene, executive officer of the 7th Group, pinned on the meritorious service ribbon. Also present was Maj. C. Raymond Dillon, adjutant of the 7th Group.

Awarding of the trophy to Lieutenant Pincney marked the first time it had been given as a tribute to civilian effort. Major Schisler commented.

Pincney enlisted on Dec. 21, 1951, at which time the 43rd Squadron had only three members. He was assigned to temporary command in January, 1952, and was directed to build up the unit to at least minimum Supervisors Thank Council for P.A.

Avalon Sepulveda Park Recreation Council received the official thanks of the Board of Supervisors recently when it contributed a public address system to the park.

Supervisor Raymond V. Darby extended his personal thanks as well as those of his fellow supervisors for the contributions of the Park Recreation Council, not alone in gifts to the area, but in the personal time, energy and interests of the members.

strength according to the citation with the award.

The depleted ranks of the unit posed a major task for a new member who had no previous knowledge of CAP, its regulations, or procedures; but he built the unit up to a present strength of 45 adults, 15 cadets, and seven privately owned aircraft, Maj. Schisler reported.

Included in the adult membership are 21 licensed pilots who have demonstrated their willingness to hire additional aircraft in order to participate in CAP activities.

The presentation to Pincney, a general contractor in the Torrance and Lomita area, was made at the weekly meeting of the Squadron at the Malaga Cove School.

Pincney lives at 3801 Via Palomino, Palos Verdes Estates.

Visualize Population of 45,000 In Keystone Area This Year

Present building trends of the Keystone area point to a population of 45,000 when present new-home construction is completed.

Such were the findings of the Regional Planning Commission and civic leaders of the area in a recent new-construction survey.

Slated for occupancy within 1000 homes comprising but two tracts in Keystone. More than 400 new homes were completed last year. Residents of those new homes are expected to swell the population by approximately 4700 persons, the findings of the survey showed.

Among the largest groups of new homes was a recently completed tract of 720 homes constructed by the Thorson Homes Co. The tract is located south of Victoria St. and west of Avenida Blvd. Nearing completion is for occupancy within a month.
